The design of the hotels interiors is led by another highly respected Irish company Millimetre Design.

A full refurbishment of all bedrooms and bathrooms has resulted in a relaxed atmosphere allowing guests to switch off and enjoy their stay. The refurbishment results in a modern calm décor, with Art Deco feel, new beds, comfortable linen, workspace, and 43-inch smart TVs. All bathrooms boast a walk-in rain shower with sustainable toiletries. There are a range of bedrooms to choose from double, twin, triple, king rooms, executive and junior suites.

The new restaurant overlooking the river Suir, will be a beautifully designed all day dining space. Reflecting the Viking heritage of Waterford, the name "elva," Norwegian for river, is a reminder of their historic arrival into Waterford city. As guests relax sipping a drink on the terrace or a meal in the restaurant, one can enjoy the panoramic views of the beautiful river Suir. The new interiors will reflect and compliment the views, with menus celebrating the best of seasonal and local produce.

The refurbished and rebranded bar "The 1843 Bar" acknowledging the Neptune Shipyard established on the site of the hotel, Canada Street in 1843. Customers will be able to enjoy their favourite tipples in comfortable surroundings served by experienced and commended staff. On balmy summer evenings, access to Waterford City's only riverside terrace is now even more highly recommended.
